Technical Stuff

Our stained timber product is finished with a lacquer for protection. Top surfaces have added heat and moisture resistance with a 2-pack lacquer. Standard matt level is a 20% gloss for a satin finish.

When staining timber, the pigment is absorbed into the timber, allowing the natural variations of the timber grain to show through. This means stains are more forgiving than paint finishes when it comes to general wear and tear, dings and scratches. Lighter stains are best for this and should be favoured in high impact areas.

Stains have a colourfast quality to them and are very resistant to fading, and are easy to touch up insitu, or can be sanded back and fully refurbished. Clear finishes are prone to yellowing over time.

Lacquered surfaces are best cleaned with a damp microfibre cloth. Cleaning product tends to create a build up over time.
